Subject line: This will never work for me

It's impossible to generate unlimited ideas.

I know you're skeptical. It's perfectly reasonable to wonder if you can suddenly fill your brain with wonderful ideas.

I understand your hesitation, Sarah.

But it's true.

If you follow my blog, you know that a year ago I stumbled upon a system. This system turned out to be a gold mine of ideas. (You can read that post here).

Since then, I have published 7 flash pieces and 3 short stories in reputed literary journals.

And this is the exact system that I teach inside IdeaSpark.

But it's just not me. There are many others who have taken the IdeaSpark e-course and have tasted success.

There's K whose computer was filled with drafts that she felt were not good enough. But after IdeaSpark, she has not only finished 3 pieces but has published one of her pieces in a reputed journal.

There's H who had given up his dream to become a writer because he couldn't think of a single idea. But now he's halfway through his science-fiction novella.

These are just a couple of success stories. You can read more here:

And your story could be the next Sarah. But for that, you need to register for IdeaSpark.

If you still have any doubts, hit reply and I will get back to you.

Looking forward to reading your story next.
