

BUILDING THE FUTURE WITH STRENGTH AND PRECISION

Western Mansions

An old Western house, typical of the 19th-century American frontier, is a simple, rugged structure built mainly from rough-hewn wood or logs, often set on a stone foundation. Its exterior shows years of wear, with sun-bleached planks, cracks, and a dusty, weathered look shaped by harsh winds and dry climates.

Mansion

These residences typically feature expansive floor plans, custom high-end finishes like marble and rare woods, and specialized amenities such as home theaters, private gyms, and indoor pools.

Modern Bongalo

single-story home designed for comfort, simplicity, and efficient use of space. It typically features a low-pitched roof, wide overhangs, and a clean, horizontal layout that blends well with its surroundings.

Modern Minimalist

These residences smaller typically feature expansive floor plans, custom high-end finishes like marble and rare woods, ols.
