

MILITARY MAN. CIGAR MAN. ALL MAN...

Psilocybin extract and THC oil-dipped, Honey Cognac-INFUSED Cuban cigars--
TOBACCO INDUSTRY SHOULD DEVELOP AND SELL THIS CIGAR. Market to the Ex-US
Military PTSD TREATMENT COMMUNITY.

CIGARS AND THE MILITARY

Cigars have long had connections to the military, with generals, troops and government leaders known to enjoy a stogie or two.

Naturally, working in a military-environment is going to be a high-stress job, so smoking a cigar offers the perfect way to relax and unwind for some.

Military Cigar Clubs and Organisations

There are several instances of organisations that promote the enjoyment of cigar smoking within the military. Here are a few examples.

Operation Deployed

Operation Deployed was set up by Robert Barr in 2014 as a US military care package program. Since then he had sent out more than 5,000 cigars to troops in Afghanistan and the Middle East.

Wanting to send a bit of luxury to the troops, Operation Deployed send boxes of 50 or 100 cigars, as well as other premium goods. Barr says that the cigars sent are usually Ashton cigars or E.P. Carrillos.

When new deployments arrive, Operation Deployed send over a special welcome care package that contains cigars, a torch lighter, chocolate bars and dried beef strips!

Cigars for Warriors

A similar concept to Operation Deployed, Cigars for Warriors also send out cigars and luxury goods to the American troops in combat zones. Instead of sending them as a care package, Cigars for Warriors works on a by-request basis.

US service members can request to receive a shipment of between 30 and 50 cigars. The cigars are funded by donations from charity events and from premium cigar companies.

