

RED, YELLOW, BLUE BOOKS

Red Book

Richard Boylan defines the Red Book as "a human compendium of information derived from the extraterrestrials." Amongst other things, it gives a chronology of alien interventions throughout history. It also contains all kinds of predictions based upon what extraterrestrials would have communicated over the years. By now, it is clear that several of these predictions have NOT come true, which increases the chance that the information about the Red Book actually was disinformation. Note that the Red Book is compiled by the US Government, whereas the Yellow Book is compiled by alien "visitors" and given to the US Government. The Red Book is believed to be updated every five years.

Yellow Book

On the Serpo site, the "Yellow Book" or "Bible" is described as "the alien's history of our universe written by the aliens themselves as well as their interactions and involvement with Earth's development/evolution. It was brought to Earth and presented to the U.S. government at the famous Holloman AFB landing in April 1964 by the female Ebe #2.

According to Richard Boylan, "the Yellow Book is reported to be a sort of holographic compact disk, which can project images of the information it contains. It is alleged to contain references to Biblical events, even including a holographic depiction of the crucifixion of Christ." One of the extraterrestrial civilizations that the US Government has secret dealings with would have given it to the US Government. Chances are that the information about Yellow Book is disinformation, as many of its predictions have failed to materialize. This is the case with most predictions of events in the 1990s.

Dan Burisch claims that J-Rod was the source of the Yellow Book, which puts things in a different perspective as J-Rod would have been, at least according to Burisch, a visitor from the future. The 'predictions' that Yellow Book contains, therefore, it would have been collected in the future as things that had happened in their past. Again, however, it is important to stress that many of the predictions have thus far failed to happen.

The late Bill Cooper, in the 'Crill Report', claims that O.H. Crill, an exchange ambassador from Tiphon in Draco, was one of the main sources of information for the Yellow Book.

Blue Book

Blue Book was the name of an official UFO research project conducted by the US Air Force, with the assistance of some independent experts, such as Prof. Dr. J. Allan Hynek (+ 1996). It ran from 1951 to 1969. Blue Book was not the first such UFO research project. It was officially preceded by the Projects Sign and Grudge. Some researchers claim that projects Gleem and Pounce were similar, but those would have been covert investigations.

The Blue Book Report became quite famous. Terms like 'distant encounters, close encounters of the first, second, and third kind,' all come out of Blue Book. Most cases in the book were given 'explanations,' though some remained 'unidentified.' Because of these few cases that could not be explained, Dr. Hynek himself, who started as a complete skeptic, later became convinced of 'another intelligence at work.'

Nowadays, most sources agree that Blue Book was more of a PR effort than a serious investigation, despite the efforts of Capt. Ruppelt to conduct an in-depth inquiry. Ruppelt himself identified several cases in which information had been manipulated or where he was denied access to relevant information. After he was taken off Blue Book, Ruppelt speculated that he may well have been the front man for an elaborate cover-up. The late Professor Hynek admitted later on in life that his assignment had been to specifically "debunk" as many cases as possible in Blue Book.

When Blue Book was presented to the Press, misinformation was given to those attending the Press Conference. The Press Release mentioned that only 3 percent of the sightings remained unexplained, and the USAF was confident that an explanation for each of those could be found. There was not enough information to give the correct explanation. This statement was directly refuted by Special Report 14 of Blue Book, which contained the statistical data, and that explicitly mentions 21 percent of unexplained cases.

In the official version of Blue Book, chapter (or "special report") 13 is missing. There has been a lot of speculation about what it contained. One source, who claims he has read it, says it dealt with close encounters with aliens, with abductions, with human remains found at UFO crash sites, and with mutilation cases.

Some sources say that Project Blue Book actually was a 'decoy' to draw people's attention away from the real research projects that were being done by the Military. WM Cooper, e.g., claims that Blue Book was organized by Project Grudge (the 'real' investigation) only for these purposes. Given all the above, it would not come as a surprise.

Exopaedia intends to provide information on all matters extraterrestrial. It focuses on those new scientific disciplines - collectively called 'exo-sciences' that deal with extraterrestrial matters. These include exo-politics, exo-biology, and exo-sociobiology. In its first stage, however, exo-political topics were given higher priority because more information was readily available, since its predecessor, the Hyper Base, contained more exo-political information.

Aquarius

Aquarius is also said to be the name of an American government project related to UFOs. The program was started in 1954 by President Eisenhower, and it got the name "Aquarius" in 1960. Robert Collins claims that it was called Gleem initially.

The purpose was to gather all scientific, technological, medical & other information on UFOs and "IACs" (Identified Alien Craft) to try and use the technology used in these crafts. As such, it is related to some other projects: Moondust, Snowbird, and Bluefly. Several sources confirm that Aquarius is the name of the framework program that deals with the overall research and contact programs regarding ETs.

One source (MW Cooper) says Aquarius is a project which compiled the history of alien presence and interaction with Homo Sapiens upon this planet for the last 25,000 years culminating with the Basque people who live in the mountainous country on the border of France and Spain and the Syrians. (Most sources refer to this as the Red Book.)
