

CBD cigars and tobacco cigars are distinct products, with some specialty brands blending aged premium tobacco with hemp-derived cannabidiol (CBD).

Key Differences

- Ingredients: Traditional tobacco cigars contain fermented tobacco leaves and nicotine. CBD cigars or hemp-derived alternatives are made from smokable hemp flower or infused with CBD oil.
- Nicotine and High: Pure CBD products contain zero nicotine and less than 0.3% Delta-9 THC, meaning they do not produce a tobacco buzz or a intoxicating cannabis "high".
- Infused Options: Specialty brands like Fuego Lights and Lucky Cigar combine traditional premium aged tobacco (such as Nicaraguan leaves) with hemp-derived CBD to offer a hybrid experience.
- All-Hemp Alternatives: Products like Wild Hemp Cigarillos use 100% hemp flower and hemp wraps to mimic the look and feel of a traditional cigar or cigarillo without any tobacco or nicotine.
- Consumer Reception: Discussing price points on platforms like Reddit r/cigars, users generally agree that paying high premium prices (around $30) for infused CBD cigars is less appealing compared to traditional established tobacco cigars.
- CBD hemp flower combined with tobacco leaf wraps or mixed blends creates a product often referred to as a CBD blunt or a hybrid tobacco-hemp smoke.
- Understanding the Combination

- Nicotine and Cannabinoids: Mixing CBD hemp flower with tobacco leaves (such as fronto, grabba, or traditional cigar wraps) introduces nicotine alongside non-psychoactive cannabidiol.
- Burn Rate and Flavor: The tobacco leaf wrapper or additive burns slower and provides a bolder, thicker smoke that alters the pure botanical taste of the hemp flower.
- Distinction from Pure CBD Cigars: True CBD cigars or cannagars use 100% hemp flower wrapped in hemp fan leaves, containing zero tobacco or nicotine. Products containing tobacco are technically classified as CBD blunts.

JAS SUM KRAL NUGGS KINE PURO SELECTION JACK HERER

Amongst the list of "interesting cigars" from the last couple years, few would rival any of the entries from Jas Sum Kral's Nuggs line.

In early 2019, Jas Sum Kral became the first known company to sell a premium cigar infused with cannabidiol, more commonly known as CBD. In between the original Nuggs—which used 20mg of CBD—and the Nuggs Maduro—which uses 100mg of CBD—the company announced the third version of Nuggs.

That cigar is the Jas Sum Kral Nuggs Kine Puro Selection, which is infused with 25mg of tetrahydrocannabinol, better known as THC.

CBD and THC are both cannabinoids, one of the hundreds of different molecules that can be found in marijuana. THC is believed to be the reason why people have a psychoactive reaction to marijuana—i.e., it's the one that gets you high—where as CBD is believed to be useful in treating a variety of ailments. In 2018, Congress made hemp-derived CBD legal on the federal level as the plant contains less than 3 percent THC. That opened up a the market to a flood of products offering to deliver CBD in forms that range from edibles to drops to dog treats.

The Jas Sum Kral Nuggs Kine Puro Selection Jack Herer is the THC-infused cigar. It's a 4 1/2 x 48 Rothschild that uses an Ecuadorian habano wrapper over an Indonesian binder and Nicaraguan fillers from Estelí and Jalapa.
