‘WALKING AWAY’

by

SADIE WINTERS

(AI-GENERATED ARTIST)

[VERSE 1]

I used to fold myself into your corners
Made myself small enough to fit
Between your scattered thoughts and maybes
While you looked right through where I sit You’d speak of dreams like they were solid
Like clouds could carry weight or hold
But I was left all in the silence
While your stories grew so bold

[CHORUS]

I was paper You were scissors Cut me out

But I still linger Every fold Every tear Still here Still here

I was static You were thunder Breaking me Pulling me under

But I'm still here You can't erase The corners of us The empty space

[VERSE 2]

I used to trace the lines you whispered

In chalk on pavement, cracked and gray

Hoping they'd lead me somewhere closer

But they just washed away with the rain away

You'd carve your name into the skyline

With words too heavy, sharp, and cold

But I would carry all the pieces

Pretend they fit

Pretend they hold

[CHORUS]

I was paper You were scissors Cut me out

But I still linger Every fold Every tear Still here Still here

I was static You were thunder Breaking me Pulling me under

But I'm still here You can't erase The corners of us The empty space
