

From the Ukrainian steppe to the Dakota frontier to the Southern United States comes the recipe of Tschetter's Original™ moonshine cocktail. Steeped in iconoclastic immigrant family roots, my fifth generation grandfather, Paul Tschetter, is said to have originally concocted a homespun, dandelion honey libation in the 1870's that remained forgotten until recently resurfacing in long lost family lore. Borrowing from old world Slavic traditions of self distilled "samohon" or what is called moonshine in the United States, we have modernized the simple form with new world flavors, smoothness and sophistication. Simply drink in the refreshing honey, citrus, and ginger tones over ice or enjoy a more elaborate cocktail of design. Either way, we think you'll find the experience original. (And yes, it's pronounced like the cheese.)
