A 21st Century Voice

"What the 21st century is looking for is a 21st century voice, and nothing represents that voice better than Nadirah X"

-Harry Belafonte

"Like an antenna, or maybe more like a mirror, Nadirah's words often reflect and expose the poisons that infect an unjust society." -Tim Kring

"I can feel her in my veins, I love her words and voice"

-Anna Vissi

"She's the real Deal"

-Mick Jagger

THE PERFECT FIT

Jamaican Rapper/Poet, Nadirah X (also known as Nadz) has worked with the biggest artists and producers around the world, her first 2 singles were produced by the legendary Sly Dunbar, she went on to work with MPhatics Steven Ventura, Andy Livingston and many more. She won the Irie FM/CME Big Break competition which led to a performance at Chris Blackwell's

Island Village where she met Brian Jobson and Dave Stewart from the Eurythmics. Stewart immediately invited Nadirah to England. Impressed, he signed her to his European-based label Artist Network. She began touring Europe as a member of DUP (Da Universal Playaz). Featured on their tours were Joanne Shaw Taylor, Candy Dulfer and Jimmy Cliff with whom Nadz wrote and recorded "Positive Mind" for his album Fantastic Plastic People/Black Magic that was nominated for the Album Of the Year Grammy Award. Later that year she won Best New Female Artist in Jamaica.

In 2003, Nadirah was commissioned by Coca-Cola to do a jingle for their Real Campaign in the Caribbean. Coca-Cola Country manager Richard Pandohie, said that his company found Nadirah to be a "refreshing sound on the musical landscape".

He also made mention of the fact that Coca-Cola has deliberately targeted females in its drive to reposition the beverage in the region. They had also added a Caribbean feel to the product. "Nadz seems the perfect fit".

Her track "I Hate This" was a part of the Lara Croft Tomb Raider: The Cradle of Life movie soundtrack. She also sang on and co-wrote the "Peace One Day " theme song with Dave Stewart, Mudbone and Jimmy Cliff.

In 2004, Nadirah scored another blockbuster movie soundtrack for Golden Globe award-winning film and soundtrack Alfie, singing the title track with Joss Stone and Rolling Stones lead man Mick Jagger.

In 2006, Nadirah recorded an album with Mudbone (P-Funk and Parliament fame) called FreshMud the album was released in Europe and received rave reviews which led them to open for Pink on her European "I'm Not Dead" tour before headlining a tour of their own.

Nadirah landed the lead role in Tim Kring's and Nokia's Conspiracy For Good campaign. It is a fictional organization that is part of an "augmented reality drama" game developed by Heroes creator Tim Kring, funded and technologically enabled by Nokia and realized by The company P, and over 100 people in production teams in five different countries.

In 2010, London witnessed the launch of the Conspiracy For Good, a radical new form of entertainment called "Social Benefit Storytelling," which allowed for people to participate inside a fictional story... to do real good in the real world. The pilot spanned the globe and culminated with 4 weeks of live events and gameplay in London streets. As a result, the Conspiracy For Good succeeded in building/stocking 5 libraries in Africa, funding 50 scholarships for schoolgirls and generating over 10,000 books for the Zambian libraries through WeGiveBooks.org.

On February 22, 2011 the Conspiracy For Good was nominated for an International Digital Emmy® Award. Later that year, Nadirah was invited to Brazil to perform at the Back To Black Festival. She performed at the festival with recording artist Judith Hill, Violinist Ann Marie Calhoun and Dave Stewart.

MR & MRS

In 2012, Nadirah X and her husband Jon Fields aka Swish released an EP the Mr & Mrs name, as a free download. The EP received positive reviews in Huffington Post and LA Weekly, which praised his production style and their lyrical ability.

In a YouTube interview by the UK blog "At Street Level", their music and production was described as 'unique.' Dave Stewart is quoted as saying, "It's refreshing seeing a married couple working intensely together rapping about stuff that directly relates to them and their situation: one so many other couples can relate to," Stewart says. "I liken their spirit to Ashford and Simpsons when they sang 'solid, solid as a rock.'" Mr & Mrs have plans to record a full length album in the future.

Dignity Song

Nadirah and Dave wrote and performed the Go Green (GreenPeace Anthem) featuring recording artists such as Annie Lennox, Sarah McLachlan, Natalie Imbruglia, Imogen Heap and Bonnie Raitt. It was released on April 17, 2007. In May Nadirah X along with Imogen Heap travelled to Beijing China to perform on the final night of the four-day Midi Rock Music Festival, the largest outdoor music festival in China.

The festival was sponsored by The GreenPeace organization. In 2008, Nadirah appeared on Annie Lennox's album Songs of Mass Destruction on the track "Womankind", which was featured in the 2008 film The Women. Nadirah is a co-writer on the track as well. Nadirah began writing and recording with Greek Superstar Anna Vissi in 2009 for Anna's English Album with production from Patrick Leonard (Madonna), Dave Stewart and Glenn Ballard.
