

From the knowledge and experience we have gained through this process we changed our point of view and we came up with the final concept.

It covers the topic more broadly and has more impact on the participants. All it needs is some participant's time and reaction to straightly asked questions. Each poster would have a set of stickers for respondents to put to their answer's field in the poster.

CONCEPT

Multiple questions from the topic of digital privacy are asked at multiple installations, consisting of a poster and, in our case, a person holding it, inviting people to participate and explaining.